

Made for You and Me: Going West, Going Broke, Finding Home

Caitlin Shetterlys Made for You and Me is a beautiful, moving, haunting, and funny memoir about what really counts. It moves deftly and lightly between the west coast and the east coast, and frustration and hope, with pointed, buoyant lines that make you smile as they pierce your heart. Made for You and Me is a memoir about great people (with great dogs, too; funny how that works out) and their great new son going through a rough patch with grace and wisdom. Caitlin and her family will realize many dreams. And in the meantime, rather than despair, they have given us a sublime gift of a book.--Scott Simon, host of NPRs Weekend Edition Saturday, is the author of Baby, We Were Meant for Each Other A redemptive story of how Caitlin Shetterly and her passionately devoted husband fought life to a draw in their coast-to-coast-to-coast odyssey. Kerouac would be proud. In fact he might be envious.--Peter Davis, Academy Awardwinning director of *Hearts and Minds*Newlywed Caitlin Shetterly and her husband, Dan Davis, two hardworking freelancers, began their lives together in 2008 by pursuing a lifelong, shared dream of leaving Maine and going West. At first, California was the land of plenty. Quickly, though, the recession landed, and a surprise pregnancy that was also surprisingly rough made Caitlin too sick to work. By December, every job Dan had lined up had been canceled, and though he pounded the pavement, from shop to shop and from bar to bar, he could not find any work at all. By March 2009, every cent of the couples savings had been spent. So, a year after theyd set out with big plans, Caitlin and Dan packed up again, this time with a baby on board, to make their way home to move in with Caitlins mother. As they drove, Caitlin blogged about their situation and created audio diaries for NPRs Weekend Edition--and received an astounding response. From all across the country, listeners offered help, opening their hearts and their homes. And when the young family arrived back in rural Maine and squeezed into Caitlins mothers small saltbox house, Caitlin learned that the bonds of family run deeper than any tug to roam, and that, with love, she and Dan could hold their dreams in sight, wherever they were. Made for You and Me captures the irrepressible spirit and quiet perseverance of one small family--and offers to share that strength with any reader willing to make the journey. Theres a story of this country that doesnt get told a lot. Or told well. Of what its like to not make it. Of having to say to yourself, and to your spouse and your child Listen, this isnt it. We need to try something else. We need to start over...from the very beginning. Caitlin Shetterlys Made for You and Me is that story. Resonant and richly detailed, it takes you deep into the personal heart of the beginning of the financial crisis and the recession that followed. Then, somehow, via Venice, California, backwoods Maine and 3000 miles in between brings you out the other end.--Kai Ryssdal, host of NPRs Marketplace
