

Star Time: New Version & New Introduction

A romantic, gripping, powerful, and very funny novel that lays bare the passions and battles of the people in Hollywood and New York who create the television we watch. Bright, beautiful Christine Paskins is riding the fast track as a tough TV reporter- her passion for her work rivaled only by her love for news producer Greg Lyall. But when Greg's uncompromising dream of power is brought tantalizingly close by the attentions of the CEO's socialite daughter, their lives explode in a tangle of passion and heartbreak, dreams and desires, love and betrayal that spans a decade. With keen insight and scathing humor, Star Time exposes the public and very private lives of the voraciously ambitious people who provide the TV shows America watches - and what they will do to get what they want. From the boardrooms of Manhattan to the bedrooms of Hollywood, uppermost in everyone's mind is the something - the ratings - until, in a riveting climax, an explosive act of violence puts lives on the line and on the screen and careers are made and broken. Star Time is a gripping, fast-paced, fascinating, and sharply funny look at the inner workings of network television, the people whose lives it consumes, and the lengths they'll go to achieve success - their star time - that will hold readers enthralled and delighted until the very last word.
