Not illustrated. 1873 Excerpt: ... be it ill or well; pray to be preserved in Faith: if not thus held up, how ofte should I have beene dismayed and sunke beneath the weight of care and perplexitie. This morning, as for several past dayes, awakened contrarie to my wont, with little sense of Refreshment or renewed Strength; usually the Night bringeth Rest to my wearied frame and Sleepe to mine eyes. Care-charming Sleepe, sayth the Poet, Sweete Father of soft Rest, as he hath it in another place; but yester night Sleepe was troubled by the Restlesnesse of waking Thoughts, like the swell of the Ocean after the Winds are stilled: and so the day, commenced under this Depression of Spirit, did seeme onely as another burden, an added day of Taske-worke to bee performed. Neither received I the sweete renewal of Trust and Hope from my Devotions, that is so ofte graciously permitted mee to enjoy; nevertheleffe I was preserved from the presumptuous Sinne of repining. If for a time the light of His countenance is withdrawne, who am I, the poorest of His Creatures, that I mould complaine, if my path, when it seemeth to Him good, should bee through the darke valley of Humiliation; so I walked sorrowfully on my way, uncomforted from within or from without; thought on the text, In thy afflictions He is afflicted, and the Angel of his Presence saveth thee, but this comfort seemed not intended for mee. Begin to doubt, that I have beene too readie to bee satisfied with myself, and to say to my soule Peace, peace, where there is no peace, and have not beene so contrite and broken under a sense of Sinne; and so is it not unrepented Sinne which doth stand betweene mee and the light of my Fathers Countenance?
